

Announcing the

6TH RACE AND SOCIAL JUSTICE LECTURE

ESSENTIAL BUT ILLEGAL: COVID-19 AND RELIANCE ON UNDOCUMENTED LABOR

Thursday, March 25, 2021 - 3:30 - 5:00 p.m. CST
Online Livestream

UNIVERSITY of HOUSTON
COLLEGE of LIBERAL ARTS & SOCIAL SCIENCES

The College of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences Special Committee on Race and Social Justice cordially invites you to attend the 6th Race and Social Justice Lecture

PLEASE RSVP

Essential but Illegal: COVID-19 and Reliance on Undocumented Labor

Date: Thursday, March 25, 2021
Time: 3:30 - 5 p.m. CST | Location: Online Livestream

Guest Speaker

Natalia Molina, Ph.D.

Professor of American Studies and Ethnicity
Department of American Studies and Ethnicity
University of Southern California

Natalia Molina, Ph.D. is a Professor of American Studies and Ethnicity at the University of Southern California. She is the author of two award-winning books, “How Race Is Made in America: Immigration, Citizenship, and the Historical Power of Racial Scripts” and “Fit to be Citizens?: Public Health and Race in Los Angeles, 1879-1939.”

Professor Molina is a recipient of the 2020 MacArthur Fellowship and has also been awarded grants from the National Endowment for the Humanities, Ford Foundation, Rockefeller Foundation and Mellon Foundation.

Daniel P. O'Connor, Ph.D.
Interim Dean of the College of Liberal Arts and Social Sciences and Professor, Health and Human Performance

For additional information, contact:
Diedra Fontaine | classeve@central.uh.edu | 713-743-7097

UNIVERSITY of HOUSTON
COLLEGE of LIBERAL ARTS and SOCIAL SCIENCES